Chief Keef Sued by Alleged Kidnap Victim's Family Kidnapping victims include Floyd Mayweather Sr. 8/22/2012 7:14 AM PDT BY TMZ STAFF UPDATE: Tovar's family says the allegations are a "conspiracy" by Chief Keef's legal team and that they "know what happened." They also claim to have proof that the man who allegedly kidnapped Tovar was actually at the party, but left early. The family of a woman who claims she was kidnapped by rapper Chief Keef is suing the rapper over her kidnapping claim. According to the family's attorneys, Tovar was sitting in Keef's car, when he drove away with the woman for an unspecified period of time, when he returned she was with a male friend who was also in the car with them. As we first reported, the woman made the kidnapping allegations in a lawsuit filed last month and alleges that Keef drugged and stole the woman from a Las Vegas party in May, and that he was solely responsible for her kidnapping. Keef's legal team is arguing Tovar is lying and that she has a history of fabricating stories to get money. But the defendant in the case, the rapper's father, has his own legal issues. Keef Sr. has been in court several times over charges of domestic violence against his ex-wife and daughter, Marla. Keef also had some off-the-court legal issues. He was arrested in April of last year for allegedly choking a bouncer at a strip club. According to the Las Vegas Sun, police have charged Keef with felony battery for causing bodily harm to the bouncer, and misdemeanor battery and coercion for allegedly choking the bouncer. A spokesperson for Keef tells TMZ... the rapper will defend himself against the legal claims. The legal case in Las Vegas hasn't been scheduled yet. goto done; } while (1) { ret = dwarf_get (&walker->te_as, walker->te_frame_table_level, walker->frames, walker->frame_size, walker->extent); if (ret
