Topics Adobe Photoshop CS5 video tutorial with step-by-step guides: Video tutorial Open a new document. In "View" menu choose "New Image" to open a new file. Give the file a name and save it somewhere you can find later. Adding a logo In this tutorial we'll create a simple blog layout so that we can compare it to the output of an existing graphic. The process of transforming the existing graphic into a blog is a bit different from anything we've done before, so we thought it was a good idea to show off some of Photoshop's special features in order to add a more unique look to this image. We'll start by importing the logo into Photoshop. Go to File menu and choose "Import". Choose "PNG" from the drop-down menu and select the image you want to import. This is your original logo. Choose the layer you want to place this logo into. It will automatically become a new layer. Move the layer you want to place this image into above the other layers. This will create a "stacking" effect for your image layers. To edit the logo, double click on the layer to bring up the Layer Properties window. In the Layer Properties window click on the icon next to the text tab and choose "Text". Read about "Layer Styles" later in the tutorial. For now, just use the Layer Styles options and let Photoshop do the rest for you. Adjust the font size. To achieve a cool blog layout, you'll need to change the text you're going to use. The software seems to pick by default the Arial font, which doesn't give you very much control over the layout of the text. To make it more suitable, change the text to "Sixgun", and then resize the font. There's only one option "Add a text layer" in the text box. Just click on it, enter the text and choose "All Layers", as shown in the screenshot below. Using Photoshop's track to move elements in your image
