Both insulin-like growth factor (IGF)-1 and its binding protein (BP)-5 are present in the heart. IGF-1 can also be synthesized by cardiac cells. The IGF-1 receptor (IGF-1R) is present in both the cardiac and smooth muscle cell (SMC) compartments. Insulin-like growth factor binding protein-5 is expressed in cardiac cells and it has been shown that BP-5 can potentiate the biological actions of IGF-1. We investigated the effects of IGF-1 and/or its binding protein on SMC isolated from rat aorta and ventricle. IGF-1 did not affect contractile responses to phenylephrine, either in aortic or ventricular cells. However, in aortic cells, IGF-1, IGF-1R, and high-affinity binding proteins (hIGFBPs) 2, 3, and 4 were significantly increased when compared with controls. In cardiac cells, the selective IGF-1R antagonist, SANT-1, increased phenylephrine-induced contractile responses. Both IGF-1 and SANT-1 potentiated phenylephrine-induced production of the procontractile protein, phosphory aa67ecbc25
