Bass Treble Booster - Bass Treble .Tag: pictures The recession is hitting many people hard, and the jobs that were supposed to bring stability are increasingly going to candidates who have already been in the workforce for a while. The struggling economy has given way to emotional insecurity — we're struggling to pay our bills, or to pay back the loans we've taken out to buy a home — and all that has a massive impact on social life. One of the institutions that have seen the most rapid change over the past few years is the wedding industry. Weddings are inherently a finite and expensive event — the financial stress this puts on couples and their families is obvious — and the industry has responded to this through huge price hikes and opting out of service. So, what can you do to save money, and get the service you're paying for when your wedding day comes? Planning a wedding is hard, but you don't have to do it alone. Here are a few of our favourite resources to help you through the planning process and save money. The wedding ceremony is one of the biggest days of your life, but the wedding planning process is one of the biggest expenditures you'll have to make. It's important that you find ways to cut down on the stress of the planning process, and find resources you can use to save money. The wedding may be one of the biggest events of your life, but it's also one of the most expensive. Here are a few of our favourite ways to cut costs, while still getting everything that you need on your wedding day. People sometimes forget that no matter how big a wedding is, there are a lot of little costs that you have to pay for. Just for the five people you're marrying, you're going to spend more money than you might think. Here are a few places where you can cut costs, and find ways to save money for your big day. For many of us, getting married is a big deal; we spend a lot of time planning, and we spend even more money when it's time to buy a wedding dress. Many wedding dress designers make wedding dresses in different styles, and they have bridal showrooms where you can try on dresses. If you're not sure which dress is right for you, it's a great way to get some ideas
