Let a and b be elements of a ring R. Then the following statements are equivalent: (1) $a = b.$ (2) $a = br$ for some $r \in R$. I was able to prove that (2) implies (1), but I am having trouble going the other way. Any ideas? A: Let $a=br$ and suppose that $b=rb_1$ for some $r_1\in R$. Then $$a=\frac{b_1r}r=\frac{rb_1}r$$ and therefore, $a=rb$ (because $\frac{rb_1}r$ and b are idempotents). Q: What is the difference between 'foreach' and 'for' on Java? "I like what I see, and can't wait to get my hands on the game! This is a console RPG deserving of a more proper localization. I also like how they've moved away from the 'world map' model with dungeons instead." CROSSROADS PIXEL "I'm fascinated by the game's story, world, and tech, and love the team's ability to cultivate the characters they've cast in this lore-heavy setting." GEOMETRIUM GAMES "I would describe this as the final frontier of fantasy RPGs." RINKAN SAGAN "It's flashy; it's fun; it's got strong narrative ideas; it has great execution; and it's all supported by a combination of beautiful art and good production values. I loved every moment of it, and there's not much more I could have asked for." PlayStation.Blog "I get a sense that localizer Patch-2 is much more diligent, and while the staff and company are larger now, the sense of a team is still strong." SIXDOOR GAMES "Elden Ring Crack For Windows offers a refreshing fantasy experience that is breathtakingly beautiful with haunting, emotive music, RPG-styled battles, a strong visual presentation that brings the fantasy to life, and dozens of unlockable outfits, weapons, and armors. It is the type of game that will resonate with most gamers and will make its way to western shores." His regime reported a "miniaturised" hydrogen bomb had been tested, generating a 6.3 magnitude earthquake, the US Geological Survey said. North Korea has been repeatedly defied by the West over the nuclear weapons programme, but it has so far resisted pressure to halt the programme. It is not certain whether the test was successful, but analysts said the data obtained from the blast would help. The test is the most powerful North Korea has yet conducted, coming less than two weeks after a nuclear bomb was tested at a similar level. North Korea said the test was carried out to "demonstrate the great nuclear force" and that its army had conducted a successful test of a nuclear warhead. US President Barack Obama said that the test was a further threat to regional and global security. The BBC's Rupert Wingfield-Hayes, in Seoul, says the size of the explosion was far greater than the one on 20 April and that the seismic tremor of magnitude 6.3 may have been a direct result of the testing. However, analysts said that there were no independently verifiable data to corroborate North Korea's claim that the test had been successful. The Pentagon said it would also continue to monitor the test. 'Leap in'

I've been asked if any info has been released since the Kings League tweet, and honestly I think it's best if you go through those links to see for yourself. The article doesn't contain information that wasn't available before, and many of those links go into more detail than I have time to cover. Don't expect anything happening in December, but I'm not sure when any news might come or how anything might go (aside from the Kings League announcement, of course). Some sort of vampirism mechanic maybe, but it's the least interesting thing for these two to share. They came from the same land, born of the same pair, and those first generations almost genetically engineered the vampires into being. But among the humans, their existence still runs the risk of discovery. As the romances grow closer and people begin to uncover details of their path, the humans begin to fear they might be descended upon by their own kind. Traits: Nemesis is supernatural in origin, which grants herself additional passive bonuses when beneficial conditions are met. Immunity: Vampires do not enjoy frequent mentions of playing Dungeons & Dragons. Reaction Type: This vampire cannot feel pity, and is more likely to act in spite. Reactions: Witty Prank, Tongue Tied, Disgruntled Pantheon:

I really liked working with them as a partner and the game is still one of my favorite projects, not just for myself, but for others as well. I still work with Runic on other games and projects, such as RunicMDK and another game called Explorers of Eternity, in addition to programming, art, and design. Design: Elden Ring

Instead of drinking on your own we figured we would play some games with our friends. We thought a combination of flashpoint, and arma 3 would be quite enjoyable. We decided to play around with two pistols and 3 magazines. This would give us a capacity of 90 rounds, for a total of 360 rounds of available ammunition and overall letting us shoot 39 times a minute. All pistols use fully automatic fire with single shot limiting the bullets we could put into one magazine. And 2 in 6 rounds was to guarantee that we couldn't miss. In this situation we are only limited by our imagination. Also... We did all this for $25
