Quite frankly, the ongoing building boom in the UAE is taking its toll on our already diminishing stock of hand-painted interiors and we are somewhat put off by the thought of seeing brick, concrete, and tiled floors take on the appearance of something resembling a "blindingly bad school project." Luckily, we did manage to get a taster of what hand-painting in the UAE might look like. In our earlier feature, we took an exclusive peek at the Wafiq Azami-designed bff6bb2d33

I've been playing the beta for several months now so I'm well aware of its many issues and have been accustomed to putting up with them. I wanted to give it a fair shake, though, so I took a risk and bought a copy of the base client. Sure enough, that's a game of guild building where you choose your race, subrace and class before you start. Now that I'm playing I will tell you what it's like. Read More...

Q: Select a specific item from a nested SELECT statement For a query in the following format how can I just select only the information from a nested select statement when the keys test=2 and status=1 and since it seems there are a few different ways to do this. Thanks! SELECT * from (SELECT `applicants.age` AS `test`, `applicants.status` AS `status` FROM `user` WHERE `user.user_id`='231') t WHERE test=2 AND status=1 A: To select a single row from a subquery you need a from clause that selects just one row. SELECT * from (SELECT `applicants.age` AS `test` FROM `user` WHERE `user.user_id`='231') t WHERE `test`=2 AND `status`=1

Inhibition of gene expression by DNA-reactive agents. The goal of this study is to apply gene transfer strategies to selectively inhibit the expression of biomolecules in mammalian cells. In initial experiments, a tetracycline-regulated gene cassette was expressed from a replication-defective adenoviral vector in LNT-229 human glioma cells. Tetracycline treatment resulted in a dramatic decrease in the level of b-galactosidase enzyme activity to less than 1% of control cells. In comparison, the expression of beta-globulin was decreased to 5% of control
