How To Choose File Type For File Upload? (SAP/ABAP) SAP/ABAP Programming provides a high level of abstraction and a lot of tools that significantly increase programmer productivity. These tools include quick code generation, automatic refactoring of code, and built-in support for safe coding practices. Nonetheless, this is a young programming language, and many of its features are still underdevelopment. That's why it is not possible to predict exactly which characteristics of the language will be developed further, and which will become deprecated. You will need to take this variability into account when choosing a specific programming file type (P-Set) for your app. P-Set is the name for your whole file format. This includes all aspects of your data, such as structure, names, documentation, links, and comments. This set includes content (such as XML documents, plain text, or images), meta-data (such as tables, etc.) and links to meta-data or to other files (such as graphics, music, or video). The P-Set features should be configurable to adapt the structure and file name to your own needs. In case you want to describe the P-Set in a table, you can use CSV (comma separated values). For more information on the ABAP and SPS - Programming SET, please refer to the SAP developer guides at: SAP SM code generation - ABAP and SPS - Programming SET - Development, Deployment and Code Generation In SAP ABAP, you can use SPS - Programming SET as the default file format for the following settings: • File structure • File names • Data files • API and access methods These settings are available as SPS Settings (ABAP) in the ABAP IDE. If you want to use SPS - Programming SET for other settings than for the above-listed ones, then you must use the file extension *-SET instead of SPS - Programming SET. In this case, the settings defined in the ABAP Settings (ABAP) will be used for those settings which are not listed in the SPS Settings (ABAP). SAP will start code generation automatically for files which use the SPS - Programming SET file type

Elecard Stream Analyzer is a comprehensive piece of software that gives you the possibility to analyze encoded media streams. It features support for AAC, AVC/H.264, MPEG-1 and MPEG-2 Video/Audio file types, and sports a handy configuration set for advanced users. Neatly organized interface The GUI is user-friendly, represented by a normal window with a clear-cut structure, where you can open media files via the file browser or drag-and-drop method. Analyze and save information Elecard Stream Analyzer shows the file size, stream type, packets count, visible packets, and overhead. Each stream can be selected to view its elements with their syntax and hexadecimal translation. It is possible to view or open only elements of a specific type such as sequence headers, extend the hexadecimal viewing mode to examine and locate offsets, send the information to a text viewer to be able to copy it to the Clipboard, as well as save it to a text file and include the stream tree, error report and visible packets. Configure program settings A search function is available for offsets, numbers and text. Plus, you can check out the event report and time dynamics, customize UI colors and change the font, as well as alter the default error, time dynamics and header lines limit. Evaluation and conclusion No error messages were shown in our testing, since the app did not hang, crash or pop up error messages. It has minimal impact on PC performance, since it runs on low CPU and RAM. To sum it up, Elecard Stream Analyzer provides advanced users with intuitive and powerful tools for investigating encoded media streams.
