biggest complain in Super Smash Bros.Q: How to select value from dropdown and define value? I would like to select a value from a dropdown menu and define the selected value as a variable. So far I've only found a way to select a value but I don't know how I would apply it afterwards. HTML 1 2 PHP `$a = $form['s1']; echo $a;` I'm doing this in PHP but I'm not completely tied to it so if there's a similar alternative to Javascript I would be open for suggestions as well. A: You don't need javascript to do what you want. PHP automatically updates a `$_POST` variable called "s1" when you submit a form, so you could easily do something like this:

$_POST['s1'] = "1"; echo
$_POST['s1']; // 1 If your form is named "foo", then you could also do something like:
$_POST['foo'] = "1"; echo $_POST['foo']; // 1 If you want to use Javascript, then you'll have to dig into the AJAX calls to the server in order to get the server to send back the selected value. Q: Monotouch Binding Element in Label and TextField I am currently working on implementing some code to upload Excel into my database. I have most of it done, except for the actual binding of the data. When I use.NET's DataTable, binding occurs naturally. However, the same cannot be said for Objective-C's UITableView. I've got the cellForRowAt implementation and the UI to handle, etc. However, I am stumped d0c515b9f4
