Twelve horror games made in 10 days. Each game in the collection is a side project that the developers would typically not get to make and didn't get to make. The only thing each of these games have in common is the fact that they are made in a very short span of time. The collection started with just a concept and perhaps an outline of a plot. It ended with a completed game. The end result is a collection of 12 games in 10 days that come together to form a single nightmare. Each game ranges from a short game in a different genre to a visual novel romance with eldritch horrors and insane machines. The developers are from all over the world. We hope that they give you a glimpse into their creative process with each new game. Cheers and Enjoy! Keyboard Support: Yes. Press 'H' to switch to a standard keyboard or press 'R' to switch back to a gamepad. Discord: Website: GameTower: Steam: •About the Developer: In 2014, Joost Janssens, a freelance game designer and illustrator, was motivated to create a stealth game in 5 days for the game jam Carnival of the Game Devs in which he won the best Independent Game award. After all these years of thinking about zombies, scary things and aliens, he finally got the idea of creating a zombie thriller and in only 48 hours created the short horror game that became THE DREADED. In 2015, he released the official mobile game and then the sequel, THE DREADED 2. After two years of improvements and a lot of input and feedback from players, he decided to publish THE DREADED: THE KINGDOM OF DAUNTLESS. He has always been very proud of the game he created and received so much positive feedback that he decided to deliver THE DREADED: THE ANNIHILATOR to his fans! •About the Game: THE DREADED: THE ANNIHILATOR is a Second Person Shmup from the point of view of a character who fights against a creature who is trying to destroy the world. What's new in Highway To The Moon:

, BROOKLYN — There's nothing like a cup of coffee (or tea or chocolate or wine, etc.) to kick someone off their Sunday gravy train. Or at least that was the case for Brother Brady, an imperious God-loving Angel of Death who ruled his infernal realm responsibly and diligently, a rule that extended to saying it would be great if he had a cup of coffee so he could turn on his third channel, but he was fine turning on the TV without a cup of coffee. "Fuck that!" exclaimed Brother Brady at the mere thought of turning on the TV in a complete, irascible tantrum. ADVERTISEMENT Then it struck him — and he was struck by a bolt of lightning. He turned on the TV, and it was only these last twenty years, and no more than that. "Who the fuck is this chump walking into my house?" Brady flipped out and the Fidelis fire department's certificate of service was draped over the pool cue, which was passed on to Gloria Gaynor, who sang to him of the long, long night. The Mormons believe in a literal hell — that people die, turn into little shiny particles of crap, and evaporate over the Great Divide into oblivion. This theory was tested at several points in time, the results of which were considered unreliable because of these people, who the Buddhists claim cannot die. And, once off the Sun King's vineyard, there was no god to comfort them. The Buddhists say that shit happens, old hippy man. There was no instant death when the divine beings fell; they just changed into dust that blew into the wind, which then blow into the great divide — not oblivion — just blowing out into limbo. The difference here is that Brady was in a position to get coffee at a real coffee shop, with real coffee for real people, because he was, in fact, a killing angel. A few more mistakes on Brady's part and he'd be at the Promised Land, just like the other angels. They say that demons live outside the Great Divide, but it's a big, big place, and God is hiding from the sun. Or the top of the Twinkie. Either way, someone else is calling the shots and Brady is not thrilled about his new job.

Workshop Simulator is a first person conversion of a fan game from the game Z-Racer. The game starts out with you arriving at your grandparents home to help your grandmother at her workshop. What do you get? - join the fun of a vintage restoration, as you enjoy the most relaxing and peaceful tinkering experience. - feel the joy of turning the old into pristine condition again - imagine a surprising and heartwarming story about your family - admire your own creations with emotions - get attached to your items How does it work? Simply put: - there's lots of hammering, repairing, painting, etc. in the workshop - you'll be able to interact with objects to find out about their history, and use them - you'll get to be in the shoes of your family - get to talk and tell the story of the object What do I need? Supported High End PCs: - Windows 7, 8.1, 10 - 4.2 Ghz Processor and 8 GB RAM - up to 7GB video memory What can it do? Workshop Simulator is very different from other niche games. It's not a game in which you have to destroy your family's blood-line, if you want to keep your family together. It's different in every sense of the word. It's a story-driven, emotional experience about restoring things, meeting new people, and stumbling upon surprises. The game contains plenty of little things, making this game not just a game for retro-fans, but a game for all kind of gamers. Features: - Campaign: You'll be able to travel through the different areas of a gorgeous, vintage country-garden and explore it, encountering and meeting different events and people - Tinkering: In this game, you'll be able to repair things, fix them, paint them, and clean them. You'll have to pay attention to your environment, and observe the different opportunities - Metacritic: 90% - Steam PC review: "So much to love! From the quirky, colorful world, to the lovingly crafted story. To the puzzles. To the interactive objects. Yes! The objects. There's so much to love about the objects in this game that it's hard to pick one thing to love about them. Just sit back and enjoy the little details that make this game shine" - Ease of Use:
