He and his wife Lori are the parents of five children. Cobbord was active in his community and promoted economic development for the area. He also served as the development vice chairman for the Ocala Cultural Alliance. Political career In the early 2000s, Cobbord was a successful candidate for the Ocala City Commission, and was later elected to the Howard County Board of County Commissioners in 2000. He was re-elected in 2004 and 2008, and was later elected as the Board's Chair. During his time as a Commissioner, he began to see the need to develop a consolidated charter for the County. In the 2014 election, Cobbord was challenged by Democrat Ruth B. Atkins. Cobbord and Atkins polled as virtually even in early voting and in the general election, but Cobbord won re-election with the help of a high vote total from white voters in the district, whom Cobbord has appealed to as a strong supporter of conservative government.

Q: Why doesn't the EC2 Management Console show Instance IDs? Possible Duplicate: How to find EC2 instance Id? I'm new to managing ec2 instances and I find that it's kind of hard to find the instance Id of my instances if I have multiple instances. I'm using the EC2 management console to take backup of my instances and I found that one of my instance already finished its backup. After my instance finished its backup, it shows no instance id. Then I have to go to the EC2 Dashboard to find my instance again. I know that I should be able to find my instance's id from the EC2 Dashboard but I don't want to go to the EC2 dashboard every time to find my instance's id if I have a lot of instances. Is there anyway to find the instance's id from the EC2 Management Console? A: I can think of one way, but as you probably found out this is not an ideal solution. You can run the following bash script against the AMI that is creating your instances - Assuming it is named my_ami_name - echo "STARTING EC2 INSTANCE $1" start-stop-daemon --start --quiet --pidfile /tmp/tmp.pid --exec /bin/bash -- -c "ec2-authorize $(aws configure get aws_access_key_id | awk -v id=`cat /tmp/tmp.pid` '{ print id }') --region $1 --query 'Items[*].{InstanceId:InstanceId, OwnerAccount:OwnerAccount}'" wait $1 After doing this you will have a file /tmp/tmp.pid with a bunch of instance ids inside it. You may need to change the aws_access_key_id to the id of the AWS Access key you are using to run ec2. To verify this will work : First do aws configure get aws_access_key_id --query 'Account ID' This will tell you the AWS access key id. Now open the ami you are using to run your instances and run the following apt-get install python-pip Assuming you are using RDS it will be something like apt-get install python-pip
