 The Castle was removed from the wiki during the "Long Time Between Updates" incident. You can get the information relevant to the Castle from this page, or by looking it up on the Castle Wire. Read also Lake County Historical Society activities and happenings, and visit the Lake County Web Site for interesting local news.

Brief History of the Castle The Castle has a lengthy history. However, the majority of the history was recorded during the early decades of the 1900's. Read about the early years on the History page.

Establishment The first record of a Lost City was discovered in 1849. The Lost City was located along Calumet prairie in Lake County, Illinois. A group of explorers headed by John S. Reynolds of Pontiac, Michigan, found a massive underground walled city with metal and stone architecture. The group chose the site on the banks of the Calumet prairie near a lake. It was called the Lost City, and it was divided into sections named Sunken, Nun's and Receding. The Lost City was settled in 1849, and first called Calumet City. The summer and winter residents were nomadic families from Ohio, Kentucky, Indiana and Indiana. They built stores, houses and other structures to live and also to fish the lake for pike, bass and perch. During the fifties, Calumet City was the most populous city in the state. In 1867, Peter Clavreaux sent some of his immigrants from Deadwood, South Dakota to found a residential town for miners in Garfield County. The Hardrock mining community was located in what is now Bunker Hill, South Dakota. It was built in opposition to the Calumet City and the Miners City that were thriving the previous ten years. It is estimated that there were 2,500 residents in Calumet City and Miners City after the Civil War. However, they were reduced to 225 in 1876 with a loss of all their land. Mining Boom Great Boom from 1866 - 1901 The mining boom of the late 1800's and early 1900's grew more and more with the introduction of new technology. The appetite for metals was so great in America at this time, that it kept the nation booming. Even after the Panic of 1873, the mining industry continued to provide the incentive to keep business moving. The lack of national banking system at this time, allowed large companies to Discover the truth as you travel across a brutal, savage world to unveil his killer, restore his divine powers, and bring an end to this bloody time. A: I think I've managed to solve the first mystery, at least. Wolf's Priestess was presumably asleep, she didn't mention that she was seeing Wolf, so the death must've been no accident. I talked to Wolf's loyal chap, and asked him what's going on,
