The History of the Internet In the mid-1970s, the US government issued its first commercial internet-service plans, and in 1983 the National Science Foundation began leasing lines from AT&T to provide internet service to universities. The first commercial email service, the New Network, was launched in 1980. The World Wide Web, which consists of web sites of various kinds, was originally invented by Tim Berners-Lee at CERN in 1989. The first big websites on the WWW were Usenet groups, built in the early 1980s. During the 1990s, many corporations began using the internet, and internet activity grew fast. The file-sharing program Napster was launched in 1999, and in the early 2000s, websites became more user-friendly, allowing people with little programming knowledge to build and edit their own websites. The Open Source Software movement began in the early 1990s, when software such as the GNU Operating System was licensed and distributed freely. In 1993, the Internet Engineering Task Force created a series of protocols for internet communication, and in 1994, the first public email list in the world was launched. That same year the first webpage on the World Wide Web was written, by English mathematician Tim Berners-Lee. In 2000, Linux was launched, and OpenOffice was created. In 2003, Wikipedia was launched as a wiki, a website that people can edit with a simple computer browser instead of a programming language. In 2006, the GNU General Public License was launched, and WordPress was created. In 2008, the first Social Networking Service was

What's new:

We are still laboring in the Spirit, going in the Power of the Spirit, the anointing of the Spirit, the enabling of the Spirit in the fruit of the Spirit, and so on. The 7th Seal, however, is really the end of the Christian experience. When Jesus calls up all of his followers to come and eat the wedding supper of the lamb, then we will come up out of the Spirit, and go to be with our eternal blessed Savior. This is the time of matrimony, the greatest day of fellowship on earth, when we meet with our Lord and are together forevermore. Because we will be together forever with our Savior, we have the opportunity to know him. In fact, we have the opportunity to know him better than we ever have before! So the time of the 7th Seal is also the time of fellowship in the Spirit- to stay in this experience, to drink in more of his love. It's time to be blest, blessed, and see more of the Lamb himself, because this is who he is. This is the blessing of the 7th Seal, or the feast of the 7th Heaven. In the right hand of the Savior is the "great white throne" and standing over this throne is the just Judge. Over the head of this Judge is a white straight cloud with "the name of the Lord." The N.T. writer John calls this throne and cloud a "throne of glory" (John 19:2) and makes clear that Jesus is the glorified Son of God. We call this throne and cloud the throne and cloud of "God's right hand" (Revelation 1:4). Notice that it is the hand of God. God is sitting there above, willing to bless all his called out people, who have persevered in the Spirit, believing on his Son Jesus, until the end of all things. First, we are told that this great and holy throne of the Lamb is approached by the spirits of the dead, the souls of those who have not persevered in the Spirit, and have not believed in the names of Jesus and the Lamb. Paul writes, "The spirits of just men made perfect" (1 Timothy 1:18). Souls of only men are in this and, like with our own bodies, it will be the "soul that sins" that cannot enter into this kingdom.
