Q: Why do you need to invoke.Paste, if the line is pre-filled by Stack Overflow? I was checking StackOverflow's new "Add reputation to Questions". Once it has been added, I noticed that the lines I pasted were no longer there, but in place of it, an existing line was added. (Example: I looked for the command that generates that line, and found the following at the bottom of that page: Which Stack Overflow already knows to add the line there, but I can't see any source of why. However, if you search for "paste is not a valid element name" in Google, you can see that the Google is made aware of it by Stack Overflow's change (and it's even on the first result). If Stack Overflow knew it was necessary, it would be easiest to allow putting the line there, and only edit the line, rather than make
