A: Civilcad is the other one. Ask HN: What are some SV.jobs websites? - ceekay Is there an aggregation of sites that puts resumes together? I've worked for a few companies like PagerDuty and Burberry so I have some experience. But what about smaller companies? By "safer job", I mean a smaller company, no BS, not just a few suits, where the employees have good UX skills, leadership/management levels, etc. ===== matt_the_bass Looks like this might fit. I've never used it but it's a little more mature than my opinion. [Q: Separating dll into two projects I have an application that runs on a device with an API called at runtime. The API provides 3 functions to start, stop and reset a timer. I have been told to separate the dll into two projects. However, I can't have 2 projects in my solution because the application I have to use this dll is already existing. I can't separate the dll into 2 dlls. The API will have 3 functions. How can I separate the dll into 2 projects? If you know how to do this in this case please share the solution. A: I don't know if this is the best solution, but I thought it could be interesting: You have to add 2 projects to your solution. In Project A, you should take advantage of the COM Interop so that your dll is compatible with the runtime. Once you have that done, you have to take this dll as an internal reference from the compiled EXE of the Project B (In Project B, the com-reference is already made, so you don't need to do anything to import your dll). You can use that reference in the third project to import your dll. Now, I'm wondering if you are sure that you will really need to introduce this use of COM... because, right now, you could just take advantage of the API-functions implemented by your dll (without having to use COM). Also, are your device's requirements that specific? If they are

Our Quality Record From the outset of a project we ensure that all our staff and subcontractors have met safety standards. FAQ How do I know if the project is within my budget? Our best advice is that we make sure your project doesn't cost over your budget. We regularly gather the information we need to do this. Can you build my project for me? We will work with you to design your project and if we feel the time is right, construct it for you. How much does it cost to have a project built? This cost is based on the project size and your location. How long does the project need to be built? This depends on the size of the project and your working hours. What are your payment terms? We are paid at a rate that is typically 50% at the start of a project. Upon completion of the project this will be negotiated to allow for progress payments, typically 75% at the start and 25% upon completion. 6d1f23a050
